EDUCATIONAL.

COUNTY EXAMINATIONS.

During an experience of four years as Chairman of the County Board of Examination, I have received, in connection with the appointed members of the Board, many blessings (?) from disappointed applicants, or from those who failed to receive certificates. Any one, who knows how the examinations are conducted, will not measure the Board's ways to fail; but as there are failures at every meeting of the Board, and the usual accusations of favoritism to some and prejudice against others, a few words of explanation as to how the examinations are conducted may not be out of place.

The County Superintendent is Chairman of the Board, which is composed of himself and three appointed members. The appointed members must hold either first, grade county or State certificates to be eligible.

The questions are prepared by the State Board of Examination for the whole State, sealed and sent out quarterly to County Superintendents, and are not to be opened until the day of examination, and in presence of at least one member of the Board. The applicants are furnished with paper, pens and ink, and are requested to write the answers to the questions. The members of the Board act as umpires, without any discretionary powers. And in nearly every instance has the State Board sustained the marking of the manuscripts submitted to them from the Board of State certification of our county.

The examinations adopted by our County Board are the same as those adopted by the State Board. The minimum for each of the three grades is 85 per cent, for first grade, 75 per cent, for second, and 70 per cent, for third. The questions for each grade are usually the same, with the exception of the addition of algebra and philosophy for first grade. Third grades are issued to ladies only.

Mr. Editor, excuse my lengthy communication. I have taken more space than I intended, and probably to the exclusion of more interesting matter.

Yours, W. M. MCFADDEN.

THE PROBLEM SOLVED.

EDITOR HERALD: What is inaccurately termed "an arithmetical problem, instead of a geometrical problem, in the HERALD of Friday, contains an infelicity of statement. If "the horizontal distance of the broken part from the bottom of the pole" is really meant, the solution is impossible. If the meaning is, that the horizontal distance from the end of the fallen pole to the line of the stump produced, is ten feet and a half, the solution is short, and the stump is two feet and six hundredths, and the fallen portion thirty-one feet ninety-four hundredths in length. D. M. BERRY.

STATE SCHOOL FUNDS.

Of every $100 paid into the State School Fund, Los Angeles county pays $1.87. Of every $100 distributed from the State Treasury, the county receives $4.30. The following counties contribute to the support of our schools, viz: Alameda, Alpine, Colusa, Fresno, Inyo, Kern, Marin, Merced, Mono, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Joaquin, Santa Clara and Yuba; San Francisco contributes three times as much as all the others combined.

VISIT YOUR SCHOOLS.

We wonder how many parents and guardians, whose eyes will fall upon the three words heading this article, ever thought of the encouragement afforded a teacher, or the new interest awakened in a pupil, by a visit to the school room.

Every day, through ten long months in the year, the teacher patiently toils amidst the same scenery and surroundings to expand the minds under his or her charge, and at the end exhibit it to the parent or guardian a faithful record of services, evidenced by the advance of the scholar to a grade of intelligence of which both parent and scholar are proud. While this gradual change has been taking place, while this nature was being fashioned in such manner as to affect, perhaps, the whole future life, how much actual interest have you manifested? How many visits to the school room have you made? How much of the teacher's system of instruction have you made yourself familiar with?

We ask these questions of parents because of all the records of schools

we have examined, a very meagre showing exists of visits.

Strange, is it

not, that in one of the most important members connected with the future of the child, parents should show such indifference?

The farmer, who early in spring sows his wheat, watches with anxiety its appearance, and gives it daily attention; the teacher, who has not once visited the school room, where his boys or girls are receiving mental impressions that will affect their future life, cannot correct, if erroneous.

The sturdy blacksmith watches closely the iron which he heats to render it more susceptible to his hammering, yet gives no attention to the forgoing, going on in the school room, of the nature and characters of his children.

Now whence proceeds this seeming indifference? Is it over confidence in the teacher, or does custom bind him as well as blind him to the evil of carelessness in this respect?

The truth is, he utterly fails to appreciate the vocation of the teacher.

He looks upon him as a machine instead of a central figure from which diverges streams of light, the light of intelligence, to hungry and imperious little minds.

It should be his special province as parent or guardian to watch that light, and see that it falls fairly upon the minds of the children, rather than tending to fall so as to produce mental obliquity. Flatter not yourselves, parents or guardians, that your responsibilities cease when the children have been hurried off to school. Your care should extend within its portals.

Visit the school room frequently,

and familiarize yourself with the teacher's system of instruction. If he is good, then he is a fit guardian for your children; if he is bad, then he is a fit guardian for your children. If he is bad, then you have a right to be angry with him, and to be angry with the school room. If he is good, then you have a right to be angry with him, but not with the school room.

Visit the school room frequently,

and familiarize yourself with the teacher's

The DAILY HERALD has nearly DOUBLE the Circulation of either contemporary paper published in Los Angeles. As an advertising medium it is consequently of DOUBLE their value.

The Meeting of the Fair Association.

A very stormy session took place yesterday. Mr. Rose, Thomas Mott, Mr. Ferguson and one or two others, were strong in their criticisms of the HERALD, for its publications of late. These gentlemen, finding the HERALD to be fearless and outspoken, when in the right, expressed their serious disapprobation, and were very indignant. A little tempest in a little tea pot was the result.

They did very little business, but a great deal discussing—no insinuation meant by the termination; and finally passed the very resolution that the HERALD and all true friends of the society are desirous of having carried out. They offered the 240 remaining shares of stock to the farmers, at the same price that the original shareholders obtained stock, and requested the discontented to come forward and subscribe. Thus no interest is charged for the time the association has been running. If guarantees are made that the Fair will not relapse into its present ruts, that it will hereafter represent the interests of the farmers as well as the racers, this stock need not remain unsold one month. But no agriculturist can be enticed into the association unless guarantees are made.

If, as Mr. Rose very sensibly proposed, the $2,000 appropriation be given to the agricultural department, and this be divided into 70 premiums, in the following manner: 10 prizes of $100; 10 of $50; 10 of $25; 10 of $10; 30 of $5, this would make a large and varied list of premiums. It would induce a great number of exhibitors; and then our contemporaries would not be obliged to say that "every exhibitor, except four obtained prizes," and the prizes would be of more value than $80. A person exhibiting thinks little of a prize won without competition. Its like Artemus Ward's company in which all but one were Brigadiers.

THOMAS MOTT and E. W. Noyes, one the time-keeper, the other pool seller at the race course, think the Fair has been a success, and don't like the position the HERALD has taken. They think and say it injures their business, and they can not support a paper which will not support them. They have stopped the HERALD—no, their copies of the HERALD.

There were given as prizes to the races $3,700, as far as we can judge from the published accounts in the morning paper; to all other departments $880, exclusive of the medals. Will the advocates of the present management note the figures?

LETTER FROM WILMINGTON.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 18, 1873.

EDITOR HERALD.—Last Saturday, an elderly man living in Compton, whom we will call John Jones, was arraigned before Justice Stratton, in Wilmington, and tried for obtaining money under false pretenses. His son had sold beef cattle to Mr. H. of this place, for which he was to be paid $240. As soon as the father heard of the sale, he went to Mr. H. and collected the money, stating that his son had authorized him to do so. Two days after this, the son also went to Mr. H. and demanded the money, stating that he had not authorized his father to collect it, and that as Mr. H. had paid the wrong man, he must pay the money a second time, and to the right man. Upon this, the anger of Mr. H. was rightly kindled, and he immediately sued old John Jones for the money, and at the same time had him arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses. Both parties being wealthy and of high standing, the trial on Saturday drew together a great crowd of people.

Frank Cowden, Esq., of Wilmington, conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Sandford of Los Angeles, the defense. The contest between them was exciting, and consumed most of the day.

The defense clearly proved that the father was the real owner of the cattle, and that the son had sold them without his knowledge or consent. Mr. Jones was therefore acquitted, and his character vindicated.

The first rain fall of the season commenced at 3 o'clock this morning, accompanied with thunder and lightning. It continued raining hard till afternoon, and is entirely over yet, for the clouds look dark and threatening. Should the weather continue warm, grass will soon cover the ground, and cattle and sheep will have abundant pasture. Everybody predicts a wet winter and a prosperous year.

Our citizens are all gratified in knowing that General Banning has established a new lumber yard in Wilmington, and is selling lumber at considerably less than those in Los Angeles. When his new wharf shall be completed, vessels will be able to discharge their cargoes directly upon it, and save the heavy lighterage which all are now compelled to pay.

The Washington Territory Legislature has passed an act to aid the construction of a bridge across the Nisqually river. The same body has repealed the act giving a bounty for the killing of certain wild animals.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The jury in the Tweed case this morning found a verdict of guilty on all the counts. The defense takes no exception to the verdict, except a general verdict on all the counts. The jury were discharged. Counsel for defense are endeavoring to obtain an arrest of judgment on the ground of want of jurisdiction of the Court.

Owing to the statement contained in a letter from Havana on the night of the 7th inst., when the news of the Virginians reached Santiago, the Spanish volunteers, in floundering exultation over their triumph, visited the widows of Masons shot in 1868, and brutally outraged the helpless women; in the struggle four were killed, seven have since died, and several are in such a dangerous condition that they cannot recover. A petition is circulated in this city, and is being signed generally by the Masters of Masonic Lodges in New York, and Past Masters of Lodges, calling for a session of the Grand Lodge of the State, to take action in this case.

There were further and worse developments in the trial of Harris, first mate of the Sunrise, this afternoon. Richard Sides, one of the sailors, swore that on the day Condriff went overboard, Harris told him to coil some rope. Condriff could not go to work, he was so sore from beatings Harris had given him. Harris told him to go forward. He did so, and Harris went with him. Harris soon returned and said "there is one gone, anyway." Condriff was overboard. Captain Clarke sung out if he was afloat, and Harris answered, no. The ship was not stopped and no effort was made to save the man. For three days previous to his death, Condriff had been kept in the hog pen with a lot of hogs. Sides said the mate made the blood fly from one side of the ship to the other till they got used to it, and hardly gave it notice. The trial is still pending.

HAVANA, Nov. 18.—The crew of the Virginians were not shot at Santiago de Cuba. Four were condemned to the chair, four for life, eight to four years imprisonment, and three were set at liberty. The Virginians arrived here this afternoon. The entered the harbor with the Spanish colors at her mast head. A procession was formed

ANOTHER OPINION.

EDITOR HERALD.—I overheard an eastern visitor remark at the "Skateen Rink," during the show last week, "How about the grape and wine interest?" I have heard that Los Angeles was noted for its grapes and wine.

Perhaps the President of the Society can throw some light on this subject, he is one of the largest grape and wine producers in the county. Query: Why does not the President of the Society manifest enough interest in agriculture to make an exhibit of our resources in that line?

Last year, in his annual address, he said "I swore by the grape."

This year in his annual address—but by the way, who has had the pleasure of listening to it—

Los Angeles Herald.

HOW IT SEEMS TO A STRANGER.

EDITOR HERALD:—Having lately arrived on the Pacific Coast, I congratulate myself on reaching Los Angeles in time for your District Fair, deeming it the best opportunity I should have for securing reliable information concerning the productions of Southern California. On examining the programme as published in the city papers, I found much about horse-racing, but very little of farm products, and the programme was faithfully carried out. There was horse-racing every day; but the magnificent fruits, the mammoth vegetables, the fine grains and the succulent grass, which were in the east, were so much of, were not there. Pool-gambling, betting on this horse or that, and speculations in regard to the winner, was all I could hear. On the streets, in hotels, at the ground, everybody, men, women and children were talking of the races, and all this excitement and interest was occasioned by trials of speed between horses that could barely make their miles in a trifle under three minutes. Naturally, one infers that the exhibition given by an Agricultural Society will to some extent represent the condition of the industries of the country; and when I found that the agricultural and industrial departments were meagre and inferior in the extreme, while gambling was largely developed, the first hasty conclusion was that the people of Southern California were more interested in the scrub horse-races than in the cultivation of the soil. An examination of the manner in which the Fair was conducted, led me to think that probably the people were not to blame for the character of the exhibition, and that they had simply erred in mistaking the animal movement for a lot of horse-jockeys for an agricultural jubilee. For instance: there was a greater sum given as a purse for a scrub race, than was paid in premiums for the entire products of the farms, orchards, vineyards, workshops and manufactures of a half a dozen counties. After thinking the matter over, I concluded not to send the city papers containing reports of the Fair to my friends at the east, fearing that a wrong impression might be conveyed. And now, if you will allow a stranger the liberty, I suggest that if the people of Los Angeles wish their Fair to amount to anything they must take the management in their own hands instead of prostituting it to the petty knavery of the race course, and devote their energies to building up and developing the great agricultural and mineral resources of their section of the State. If proper inducements are offered, there will be no difficulty in bringing together a creditable display of the products of the county, and such a display will be of infinitely more value to you as a community than all the horse-racing that can be crowded into a week. Such an exhibition will be a better and cheaper advertisement of your resources than any other you can devise, and it will in a very few years cause a marked improvement in the quality of your flocks and herds, and an ever increasing interest in the noble pursuit of agriculture.
